

NestPaw

Investor brief on the idea, the demand, and how a focused dog brand competes without trying to become Amazon or Chewy.

The idea

NestPaw sells a small set of calm, comfort, and grooming products that help people care better for their dogs at home. We buy wholesale, sell direct on shopnestpaw.com, and fulfill simply from a U.S. ship-from address.

Why this can sell

Dog owners already buy tools that cut mess, stress, and daily friction. NestPaw sells into that job-to-be-done — not novelty gadgets.

- Real home problems — shedding, bored foraging, fast eating, nail stress, calming.
- Year-round need — utilitarian tools people search for, use, and replace.
- Resilient spend — pet budgets usually hold up better than fashion or gadgets.
- Easy to show — kits and mats photograph cleanly once the ad message works.

What we sell

Five SKUs only. A tight catalog lowers inventory risk and makes winners obvious.

Product	Price	Landed cost*	Contribution*
Shedding Brush Kit	$24	~$4.11	Strong
Forage Snuffle Mat	$28	~$14	Solid
Silicone Slow Feeder Mat	$34	~$9	Strong
Quiet Nail Grinder	$25	~$11	Solid
Suction Lick Mat	$14	Low $	Entry / attach

*Landed ≈ product + inbound freight (planning). Contribution is after outbound shipping, Stripe, and a returns pad. Full math: nestpaw-product-catalog.pdf

How money works

Buy below retail, sell branded, keep the margin after ads and shipping. Customers pay $4.95 shipping under $40; free shipping over $40. We start with Alibaba / CJ samples, bulk-reorder only what sells, and self-ship week one (Pirate Ship + USPS). Stack: NestPaw + Stripe + Postgres + Resend.

Competing with Amazon, Chewy & big box

We are not trying to out-warehouse Amazon or match Chewy's catalog. They win on scale and assortment. We win a smaller, clearer game.

	Amazon / Chewy	NestPaw
Assortment	Everything for pets	Five calm-home / grooming SKUs
Discovery	Search rank & marketplace noise	Brand story + targeted ads
Customer	Platform owns the relationship	Orders, email & returns on our stack
Margins	Fees + race to the bottom	Wholesale → DTC room for ads
Unboxing	Generic third-party box	Brand pack + calm tips card
Inventory	Scale first, fix later	Samples → soft launch → winners only
Delivery	Same-day / next-day depth	Honest 5–8 day ship; ship in 24h when stocked

Amazon and Chewy win when someone needs anything tomorrow and brand does not matter. NestPaw is for owners who want a calmer home kit they recognize — packed like a brand, not a random listing.

- Do not compete on logistics scale — that is their capital game.
- Compete on trust and clarity — one promise, one site, real support.
- Compete on unit economics — wholesale costs leave room for ads and free-ship rules.
- Compete on learning speed — five SKUs answer “does it sell?” in a soft launch.

How we prove it sells

Demand is proven by paid orders, not a larger pitch deck.

1. Store first — live checkout, inventory, orders, and shipping email already work.
2. Samples before bulk — QA quality and real ship times first.
3. Soft launch — friends/family + small ads; track conversion and CAC by SKU.
4. Kill or double — reorder winners; drop losers with little sunk cost.
5. Then scale creative — video/ads only after first orders validate the message.

Bottom line. NestPaw does not need to beat Amazon at Amazon's game. It needs to convert paid visits into profitable orders, own the customer, and scale only what sells — proven by a live pipeline, not by matching big-retail catalog size.
